

A photograph of a classical building facade. The building has a light-colored, possibly stucco, exterior. At the top is a dark, tiled roof with a small dormer window. Below the roof is a large, rectangular window with a decorative stone frame. A couple is visible in this window, looking out. Below this window is an ornate, classical doorway with a pediment and decorative carvings. The doorway is flanked by two tall, narrow, conical evergreen trees in large, ornate stone planters. The entrance is reached by a set of stone steps, which are flanked by black wrought-iron railings with decorative finials. The overall style is classical and elegant.
