Consider Your Event and Your Values

There are a lot of things to consider when it comes to documenting your big day. A good place to start is by asking yourself what you think you'll value most in your documentation. Knowing your priorities will help narrow in on the coverage that means the most to you. With your values in mind, what events do you want included in your coverage?

Most Common Moments

Moment	Description
Pre-Ceremony	Everything that takes place before the aisle; hair styling, make-up, mimosas, getting dressed, etc.
First Look	A private moment before the Ceremony to experience your significant other in full marital dress.
Ceremony	From the formal processional, to the vows, first kiss, and walk out. Everything deserves to be captured.
Detail Shots	Ensure that the day's emotion and design in decor and aesthetic is authentically captured.
Cocktail Hour	A time for guests to socialize, drink, and snack, typically while the bridal party poses for portraits.
Newlywed Retreat	An artistic session between photographer and newlyweds for extraordinary portraits.
Bridal Party Portraits	A quick paced session including all members of the Bridal Party together and grouped.
Guest Portraits	A quick paced session with the closest family and friends posed alongside the newlyweds.
Formal Reception	Bridal Introductions, dances, toasts, games, socialization, and any other personalized event.
Late Reception	When the schedule for the day becomes more lax, and the structure is completed, everyone gets loose, free, and jiggy with it.
Farewell	A special send-off/goodbye to the newlyweds with full participation from your guests.
After Party	A deeply intimate celebration taking place after your festivities with potentially memorable off-book activity.
* Based on your event's tentative schedule, which moments do you want covered? *
