

A photograph of the exterior of the Firefly Grill restaurant during the "golden hour" of sunset. The building features a large, dark blue corrugated metal roof with the words "firefly grill" painted in a large, red, lowercase, sans-serif font. Below the roof, the building's facade is made of weathered, horizontal wooden planks. Large glass windows and doors are visible, reflecting the warm light of the setting sun. In the foreground, a man, a woman, and a young child are standing on a paved area, looking towards the camera. The man is holding the child on his shoulders. The scene is bathed in a warm, golden light, with long shadows cast across the pavement. Some landscaping, including tall grasses and shrubs, is visible on the right side of the frame.
