An investment made by William Dickinson in 1813 flourished and became part of the salt making capital of the East. After many decades dormant, J.Q. Dickinson Salt-Works transformed into an environmentally conscience business and Event Venue in 2013, creating a mineral rich salt with a uniquely pleasing taste. It is now a destination for a vast collection of Appalachian foods, crafts, and home goods.

Romantic, rustic, elegant. J.Q. Dickinson Salt-Works offers an array of locales, from inside the beautiful wooden beamed ceilings of the Terra Salis building to the historic setting of the Rose Gardens on the farm, you can select a space that fits your needs.
